

Kikia Te Poa

By Matthew Saville

The Play Press. Paperback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, Kikia Te Poa, Matthew Saville, Based on real events, "Kikia Te Poa" is the story of John Cook - a 'Maorish' (Ngapuhi/Irish) Maori who ventures into the Anglo-South African War to prove himself and the value of his people to a changing New Zealand. Although Maori were not allowed to fight in the Boer War, many mixed blood men did and one of them was John Walter Callaway, who wrote a haka for the Kiwi troops - Kikia Te Poa. The Boer War saw the birth of concentration camps, New Zealand's status as a warrior nation - and also international rugby. Most importantly it saw the beginning of a rivalry between two countries that would last one hundred years - on the rugby field, and in the politics of two very different nations. This title contains an insightful introduction from Greg McGee, writer of the classic play Foreskin's Lament and features 4 male characters.
